

FUTURE PRESENT TENSE

One can reasonably wonder how it is possible to combine two fundamental tenses into a single form called the future perfect tense. However, given that time is not limited in any way, the grammar should be more adaptable and comparable to the period in which the event took place in order to provide users with additional information while they are interacting in English.

Read more

Q1: Which sentence uses the future perfect tense?

A: She will have traveled to five different countries by the end of the year.

B: They will have completed their project before the deadline

C: All of the above

Q2: Choose the correct future perfect tense form of the verb:

A: Doing

B: Will be doing

C: Have been doing

D: Doing early

Q3: Which of the following sentences is in the future perfect passive voice?

A: She will have traveled to five different countries by the end of the year.

B: They will have completed their project before the deadline

C: None

Q4: True or false: Perfect future tense includes passive voice.

A: True

B: False

Q5: True or false: Perfect future tense only includes passive voice.

A: True

B: False

Q6: True or false: Perfect future tense includes present participle.

A: True

B: False

Q7: True or false: Perfect future tense includes auxiliary verbs.

A: True

B: False

Q8: True or false: Perfect future tense includes base verbs.

A: True

B: False

Q9: True or false: Perfect future tense includes “have been being”.

A: True

B: False

Q10: True or false: Perfect future tense includes only been.

A: True

B: False

Answers

Q1: C - All of the above

Q2: C - Have been doing

Q3: C - None

Q4: A - True

Q5: B - False

Q6: B - False

Q7: A - True

Q8: B - False

Q9: B - False

Q10: B - False